AMONG THE MAGAZINES

Woman's Home Companion for January.

The current issue of this most progressive woman's publication contains two unusual art reproductions. At the Royal Academy last summer, a painting of Christ, entitled "Follow Me," by a hitherto unknown woman painter, proved to be the sensational canvas of the exhibition. So remarkable was this unusual and spiritual picture that it was at all times completely surrounded by groups of interested and reverent people. "Follow Me" is reproduced in America for the first time in the January Woman's Home Companion. Howard Chandler Christy's "The Wooing of Lorna Doone," also in the January Woman's Home Companion, is the first of a series of love scenes from famous novels that are being painted for this magazine by the most celebrated artists of the day. Another attractive feature consists of portraits of the "Beauties of a Thousand Years," collected from all over the World for the Woman's Home Companion by William Armstrong. Lucy Green, a 17-year-old girl who landed in Philadelphia one day not long ago, looking for work, with only five dollars in her pocket, relates her experiences in the Quaker City.

In addition to the many special articles, there are contained in this issue a dozen complete departments, including dress making, by Grace Margaret Gould; cooking recipes for mid-winter receptions, by Fannie Merritt Farmer, and "Problems of the Business Girl," by Anna Steene Richardson.

A Creed for the Discouraged.

I believe that God created me to be happy, to enjoy the blessing of life, to be useful to my fellow beings, and an honor to my country.

I believe that the trials which beset me today are but the fiery tests by which character is strengthened and ennobled and made worthy to enjoy the higher things of life which I believe are in store for me.

I believe that my soul is too grand to be crushed by defeat; I will rise above it.

I believe that I am the architect of my own fate; therefore,

I will be master of circumstances and surroundings, not their slave.

I will not yield to discouragements I will trample them underfoot and make them serve as stepping-stones to success. I will conquer my obstacles and turn them into opportunities.

My failures of today will help to guide me on to victory on the morrow.

The morrow will bring new strength, new hopes, new opportunities and new beginnings. I will be ready to meet it with a brave heart, a calm mind and an undaunted spirit. In all things I will do my best, and leave the rest to the Infinite.

I will not waste my mental energies by useless worry. I will learn to dominate my restless thoughts and look on the bright side of things.

I will face the world bravely; I will not be a coward. I will assert my God-given birthright and be a man.

For I am immortal and nothing can overcome me.

Virgilian Opal Myers, in the New Idea Woman's Magazine.

Mr. Taft's New Year Resolutions.

"If I am elected," Mr. Taft has said, "I propose to devote all the ability that is in me to the constructive work of suggesting to congress the means by which the Roosevelt policies shall be clinched. And in that work he adds, 'My conscience shall be my final political counselor.'"

I will conserve the interests of interests of invested capital for the welfare of the country and of the workman.

Men who, to get rich, violate the law, moral or statutory, must be restrained. The statutory law should be amended where necessary so as to comprise the moral law.

I shall not interfere with legal combinations of capital that are beneficial and properly controlled; but I shall interfere with those made merely to control markets, fix prices, restrict output, kill competition.

I am against limiting the proportion of their output corporations may own, and fixing prices by government.

I shall take no steps to destroy great organizations that have a large wage fund when prosperous, and that add greatly to the prosperity of the country; but I shall do my utmost to keep them within the law.

I am interested in legislation against the railroads, that it shall be just and only properly restrictive.

The whole country depends upon the prosperity of the railroads.

The principle of competition between naturally competing lines must not be violated. And I should approve an amendment to the law permitting useful traffic agreements when approved by the interstate commerce commission.

It will be one of my most pleasant duties to construct legislation that shall give labor a square deal and no more than a square deal.

I shall uphold the right of labor to organize for the purpose of making itself properly a power in the community, to maintain its level in the struggle of life, and for dealing with capital.

I shall oppose labor when, exercising its right to strike, it injures the property of its employer, and when it attempts by "secondary boycott" to compel a third and unwilling person to join the controversy.

Non-union labor shall be secured absolutely the same rights as union labor.

I shall endeavor to bring capital and labor into closer relations of confidence and interdependence, and shall seek peace between capital and labor by their mutual recognition of their respective unions and acceptance of the principle of mediation and arbitration.—From the January Circle Magazine.

Here Is a Man

Who wishes to spend some money in Salem but before doing so he would like to know whether the people here would care to have an enterprise started such as he would put in. In other words would Salem support an up-to-date Vacuum Cleaning Wagon. Such a wagon would draw up in front of a store or a house, run in a hose and suck the dirt out of the building without disturbing a piece of furniture, curtain or picture, and never raise a particle of dust. These wagons are operated in all large cities where cleaning is done no other way. It is the cheapest and most thorough manner of renovating a building. All who would be interested in this manner of cleaning are requested to address "A" care Journal as soon as possible. Do not delay as the party interested is in a hurry to know how the Salem people would treat such an enterprise.
